But Mindanao rejects sale of hydro plants

By Norman Bordadora

DAVAO CITY—The era of cheap electricity in Mindanao is coming to an end, President Aquino said yesterday as he launched into an impassioned defense of the government's attempts to rationalize the power situation in the island at the Mindanao Power Summit that was called to discuss solutions to the supply shortfall that has brought rotating power blackouts the past few months.

Mr. Aquino held a photo of politicians, business people and civil society groups who were all but united in their opposition to the impending privatization of the island's hydropower plants and demanding the revision of the Electric Power Industry Reform Act (EPIRA).

They also opposed the proposed power interconnection between Mindanao and Luzon provinces, saying it will only bring the high cost of power in the Visayas and Luzon to Mindanao.

"This isn't just about energy, this is about power," he said.

North Korea rocket launch a crashing humiliation

PYONGYANG, North Korea—North Korea's widely condemned rocket splintered into pieces over the Yellow Sea soon after takeoff on Friday, an embarrassing end to a launch that the hermit state had inked with national pride and a blow for its new young leader, who faces increased international ostracism over the act.

Within minutes of the early morning launch, the United States and South Korea declared it a failure. North Korea acknowledged that hours later in an announcement broadcast on state TV saying the satellite that the rocket was carrying had been unable to enter into orbit.

PH, China set aside protests to ease tensions

By Tina G. Santos

THE PHILIPPINES and China agreed yesterday to set aside their diplomatic protests in order to ease tensions over a naval standoff at the disputed Scarborough Shoal in the West Philippine Sea (South China Sea).

China also pulled back one of three surveillance ships at the Scarborough Shoal off the northeastern Philippines, Philippine Foreign Secretary Albert del Rosario said yesterday. But the dispute remained with two other Chinese ships facing off a Philippine Coast Guard vessel.

Three of eight Chinese fishing boats at the center of the standoff may have left the shoal yesterday.

Setting aside the protests, however, did not mean withdrawing them. Del Rosario said the protests would still be coming, but the two sides would not give priority attention to them, as both seemed to break the standoff by diplomatic means.

Del Rosario, who met with Chinese Ambassador Ma Keping yesterday morning, said the Philippines and China agreed to maintain the "status quo."

UN Council demands a stop to Sudan, South Sudan clashes

UNITED NATIONS—The UN Security Council demanded on Thursday that Sudan and South Sudan stop border clashes which it said threatened to reignite the civil war between the two nations.

A statement from the 15-nation body also demanded that Sudan stop its attacks on South Sudan and that South Sudan stop its attacks on Sudan.

Fighting along the 1,000-kilometer border between the two nations has been hot and cold for more than a decade. It has been at its most intense in the past few years, but it has been at its least intense in the past few years.

British PM makes historic visit to Burma

NAYPYIDAW—British Prime Minister David Cameron met Burma's (Myanmar's) president on Friday on the first visit in decades by a Western leader to the former pariah state, as world powers consider lifting sanctions.

Power lines. These lines take the summit to "Aungmye" as he welcomed Cameron to his office because in the region's democracy capital, Naypyidaw, according to an AFP reporter.

The British premier was also due to meet opposition leader Aung Mye Thaw in Nyaung-U (Hague) during the one-day visit, which follows the end of nearly half a century of outright military rule last year.

Britain—Burma's former colonial ruler—has traditionally taken a cautious stance on its relations with the military government, but it has recently shown signs of softening its position.

"Where interests is beginning, that in Britain, we must get to know it," Cameron said in his introductory remarks to Aungmye on Thursday during a regional tour that also took him to Aungmye and Mandalay. He paid tribute to "the courage and vision of Aung Mye Thaw" and praised the "new dawn" in Myanmar.

Interim president sworn in 22 days after coup in Mali

BAMAKO, MALI—Twenty-two days after a military coup ended more than a decade of peaceful democratic rule in Mali, the head of the country's national assembly was sworn in as interim president on Thursday.

The official, Ibrahima Traore, a 70-year-old former soldier who had been jailed in Mali's earlier struggle against colonialism, will lead a temporary government that aims to organize new elections within 60 days and guide the country back to constitutional rule.

But he must also face the challenge of reuniting a country torn in two. During the chaos of the coup, an opportunistic ally by firing missiles in the north seized strategic towns and declared an independent state.

Mali has never experienced such civil chaos, Traore said in remarks after his swearing-in. "In very extreme in a nation like this."

He called upon the Tuareg rebels to leave the arms they seized immediately or face "total and irreversible war."

Earlier, the West African state had threatened the coup leaders to relinquish power by closing borders with Mali and leaving its borders to the region back, but so has drawing up plans to help end the rebellion in the north. The coup had been considered a threat to Mali's democracy.

In Africa, the country was seen as a model among other nations for its success in replacing its president, Amadou Toure, who had suffered in the nation's transition by stepping down after his second term in office.

There, for a complete dissolution of the democratic process, a group of junior officers deposed him, claiming that he had been too weak to continue the uprising in the north. In the ensuing confusion, however, the southern rebels quickly advanced taking control of Timbuktu and declaring such as the seizure of political prisoners and by-electing this month that gave the United States because his first-term was incompletion.

"But let us show that when they have the courage to return, we have the courage to respond," Cameron added.

A steady stream of foreign dignitaries, including UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon and British Foreign Secretary William Hague, have visited Burma since a new quasi-democratic government took power last year.

But Cameron is the first Western leader of government to go there since the military seized power in 1962, allowing it to almost half a century of repression, ethnic wars and isolation from the West.

He is believed to be the first serving British prime minister to visit Burma, which won independence in 1948.

After two-and-a-half years in

On April 12, British Prime Minister David Cameron met with Burma's President Thein Sein during their meeting at the President's Office in Naypyidaw on April 12.

Cameron was the first Western leader to visit Burma, which won independence in 1948. The return diplomat built huge influence in the United States and Europe, particularly

London, and a move to increase would almost certainly help his support.

The 27-nation European Union already filed some resolutions against the regime this year and foreign ministers will discuss the next steps when they meet on April 24.

U.S. State Sec. Clinton

Cameron said Burma will continue, the EU could move to a "substantial relaxation of sanctions," said Derek French, a senior British ambassador to Thailand and an advocate of engagement with Myanmar.

He added, however, that the impact of U.S. sanctions has been limited and more to end the sanctions, a ban on arms and other goods, is less on ground and to more than 100 people and 100 companies.

Foreign ministers from the G-8 world powers—Britain, Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Russia and the United States—on Thursday discussed "significant steps" by Burma to end democratic elections.

The ministers will consider the ending of sanctions to help this country ended isolation and fully integrate into international and regional political and economic processes," they said and find common ground in Washington. AFP

Egypt in tough final leg of transition

By Tim Perry

CAIRO—The final leg of Egypt's transition from military to civilian rule has begun in a first step: a vote to elect a new parliament. The vote is being held in a state of crisis and confusion among Egyptians, who fear their democratic gains could be at risk.

Last weeks have seen a protracted election in May, followed by a hard-fought vote in a nation polarized by the rise of Islamist groups that were accused of human rights abuses and attempts by members of its military to overthrow the government.

The struggle for control of Egypt's transition to the civilian rule has moved to the courts and the military-controlled parliament. How the next weeks proceed will determine the course of political change that will influence the whole region.

"There is some serious gamesmanship in it to give the upper hand to the lower," said a senior diplomat, working in Cairo. "I don't think anyone could say it is going smoothly. After all, this kind of election is not a simple one."

The vote will take place in a two-stage process. The first stage will be to elect a 500-member parliament. The second stage will be to elect a 100-member council.

the legislature is unlikely to win the approval of the military establishment, which is necessary for it to come into force.

The political head in the field is Abdel Fattah el-Sisi, the former head of the Egyptian army, who took power in July 2011 after the popular uprising put an end to his predecessor's power.

The speedy diplomatic resolution of the coup would mark progress in the case of Ivory Coast, where results of internal local elections and elections failed to dislodge the nation's autocrat, Laurent Gbagbo, after he lost an election.

In that case, it took an onslaught by rebel forces and an attack by the United Nations and France before Gbagbo surrendered but some have claimed, the crisis was ended by a vote of no confidence in the president.

Still, the situation in northern Mali remains in a state of flux. The UN has been accused of human rights abuses, and the situation in northern Mali remains in a state of flux.

Year-on-year increase of 5.3% or P252.6B

By Rosalyn R. Domingo

THE GOVERNMENT'S debt stock rose to P4.99 trillion as of January, increasing by P42.1 billion or 0.9 percent from the December as the state incurred more new obligations than what it settled, according to the Bureau of the Treasury.

The amount of outstanding obligation as of the end of January was also 5.3 percent or P252.6 billion higher than the level posted in the same month of 2011.

With the population estimate of 10.4 million in January 2012, the amount of total outstanding debt would mean that each citizen has a share of P252.615.

Data on road construction showing debt was linked to foreign investments such as the US dollar as well as the euro and yen.

Foreign borrowing increased by P16.1 billion or 1.8 percent from the P22.28 billion owed to overseas lenders in December.

The increase in foreign debt was due mainly to a lot of medium-term of P45.26 billion, which means that new loans that the government incurred were higher by that amount compared to the payments it made.

The appreciation of the peso and the peso against the dollar also added P1.56 billion to the debt stock. On the other hand, the revaluation of some of the country's foreign debt shared off P6.64 billion to the government's obligations.

In March, Finance Secretary Cesar V. Dela Cruz said that the debt stock—when compared to the size of the economy or gross domestic product—stood at 30.7 percent in the third quarter of 2011.

Parsons said that was the lowest debt-to-GDP ratio in the past 13 years or since 1998, when it was at 48.1 percent.

Double-digit bank lending growth to continue

By Michelle K. Barua

THE BANGKO SENTRAL (BSR) expects bank lending to sustain a double-digit growth this year on the back of low interest rates that are seen to drive appetite for credit.

The BSR said banks would remain keen on extending more loans to individuals and companies because of their significant liquidity.

A robust increase in bank lending this year, in turn, is seen to aid efforts to boost growth of the economy following a sharp slowdown last year.

"Steady growth and adequate liquidity are critical to support the domestic economy in the wake of uncertain global economic prospects," BSR Governor Ricardo Trillanes Jr. said in a statement.

He made the statement as the BSR released a report saying that outstanding loans from national and commercial banks as of end-February grew 18 percent to P1.78 trillion from P1.54 trillion as of the same period last year.

The increase was even both in terms of loans to individuals and corporate borrowers, the BSR said.

Those that benefited the most from the increase in loans to corporate borrowers were subsidiaries and retail banks, those including, retail stores, utilities and financial services, the BSR added.

Aided by the increase in bank loans, the country's economy's overall liquidity grew 7.2 percent in mid-February to P4.51 trillion from P4.21 trillion in the

Regulator steps up effort to protect consumers

BSP initiates campaign to minimize fraud

By Michael V. Sison

THE BANKS OF the Philippines is embarking on a campaign to fully protect consumers from those engaging in financial crimes.

The BSP said it would conduct more financial education activities to help consumers detect illegal schemes, protect themselves, and report any suspicious activity.

Adelino N. Rando, managing director at the central bank and head of its financial and consumer affairs group (FICAG), said the BSP would make consumer protection a more vital part of its function.

Striving for a highly developed financial system entails having sufficient capacity to protect consumers, Rando said.

"Financial consumer protection should now be an integral part of the legal, regulatory and supervisory framework," he explained.

Aside from holding more educational seminars, consumer protection is being made more prominent in offering financial products to their customers in market centers. The BSP will also enhance consumer protection.

The BSP recently issued a circular requiring banks to generally take credit cardholders to be involved in the interest charges and fees imposed on them.

Regulators said the circular should address complaints arising from lack of awareness of consumers about the expenses involved in the use of credit cards by making purchases.

Aside from credit card problems, other complaints filed with FICAG include difficulty in withdrawing funds, interest rates on loans, and details of insurance products.

The BSP said that one of the basic things consumers must do to avoid financial crime is to make certain when using a credit card that it is not being used to purchase prohibited products, be it deposits or financial investment instruments.

The BSP said that every time they use a credit card, consumers should be aware of the high interest rates to protect deposits or investments.

The regulator said that banks should be aware of the high interest rates to protect deposits or investments.

ing investment products that have above-market interest rates.

In dealing to enhance consumer protection, FICAG has simply responded to calls from the Department of Economic Cooperation and Development (DECEP) for regulators to develop a body that will study power, consumer interests, Rando said.

"DECEP calls for the designation of oversight bodies responsible for financial consumer protection with the necessary authority to fulfill mandates. The international body also encourages the promotion of broad-based financial education especially for vulnerable groups," he pointed out.

According to Rando, the DECEP will hold an international conference on consumer protection in September and the Philippines, through the BSP, shall be the host.

The event will be held in Cebu. Supervisors from various central banks and other financial regulatory bodies will convene to discuss ways to improve consumer protection, Rando said.

New lease on PSALM life sought

By Arny R. Narso

ENERGY Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile has urged Congress to extend the corporate life of state-run Power Sector Assets and Liability Management Corp. (PSALM) for another 10 years to further ease the impact of collecting the debt of power companies towards P140 billion.

"I am asking Congress for an extension of 10 years so that the universal charges to be imposed on power consumers will be less than 10 centavos per kilowatt-hour," Enrile said in an interview.

In an application to the State under which the Energy Regulatory Commission, PSALM sought to convert from all power consumers 35 centavos per kilowatt-hour over a five-year period to enter the payment of stranded costs, apart from a 3-centavos per kilowatt-hour over a 15-year period in a second tranche. There will be reflected as universal charges to a consumer's monthly price bill.

The extension of PSALM's corporate life in 2014, from the original expiry of 2008, will then allow the corporation to spread the collection of universal charges for stranded costs (SCS) and recover costs (RCS) over a period longer than what had been earlier proposed.

Last year, the Department of Energy indicated a priority bill to extend PSALM's corporate life before the Joint Congressional Power Commission and the Legislative Service Commission.

But no decision has been rendered to date. Enrile said he has stressed the necessity of collecting the universal charges for stranded costs to fully bring down the energy crisis's debt.

"From our children will be paying for this. The power debt was the single largest debt of the Philippine Republic at previously P302 billion, and now, we have brought it down to P303 billion (as of end June 2011)," Enrile said.

Of the P315 billion, Enrile's total liabilities amount to the bulk with P107.25 billion, National Power Corp., with P30.45 billion, and National Transmission Corp., with P14.6 billion.

Of the total amount, outstanding liabilities come to about P774.24 billion, while counterpart liabilities amount to for the remaining P140.91 billion.

Making a mark: PRO-FRIENDS one of the fastest growing developers

By Theresa S. Semanaga

THE REAL measure of a truly successful and trustworthy property developer lies in its ability to break barriers and reach out to every home-seeking Filipino.

After all, putting up communities and developments should not just be regarded simply as a money-making business, but also as an avenue to offer more Filipinos a chance to realize their right to having a decent home with a quality living experience. And that is exactly what Property Company of Friends, Inc. (PRO-FRIENDS) has been doing for over a decade—offering houses that give them value for their money.

PRO-FRIENDS, one of the fastest growing real estate firms, went beyond normal by being among the pioneers in offering more affordable and innovative housing developments to wider range of clients way back in 1999.

As it has proven itself to be a trustworthy developer—see that last sentence twice that what was promised—PRO-FRIENDS has been growing its portfolio, expanded its reach and improved the developments of its communities, adding five established subdivisions to the bigger estate projects, earning immense market exposure.

"We have 36 on-going developments and 52 finished projects. Most of these are in Cebu, New Clark City and one project will be opening in Pangasinan soon," PRO-FRIENDS Corporate Communications Manager Monica Morales said, noting that the growth of the company is highly evident in the sheer number of projects delivered with promise that a decade of operation.

"Since 1999, we have been catering to the affordable segment. It is only with dedicated spaces that we tapped the mid-income segment. We have moved in the industry because we invest in research and planning, enough to be able to provide the market with a top-of-the-line product that will suit their needs," Morales explained.

"We also take pride in the well-appointed spaces of our house models that afford our buyers a three-bedroom home for less than a million," she added.

In Cebu, PRO-FRIENDS has Lancaster Estates and Gardens Estates where house-ing with an average between P900,000 and P3 million, as well as the Belvedere Estates, where only range from P2-million to P5 million.

In fact, the company has Pure Regency Residences (P1.4 million to P2.4 million) and the Belvedere Villas (P900,000 to P1.1 million).

"We strive hard to provide future residents a safe and secure gated community with multiple amenities that not only suit their needs, but can also facilitate and improve their day-to-day lives," Morales noted.

For instance, the new 100-hectare Lancaster Estates, an expansive development that offers bigger and more spacious townhouses and single attached units, provides facilities with modern conveniences. According to PRO-FRIENDS, this area affiliated by designing the community to have its own commercial complex, a basketball terminal, a gas station, a church (Church of the Holy Family) and the new school, the St. John's Integrated School which is set to begin its first school year this coming June.

The school, Morales noted, is a special investment on the part. It is a testament to the commitment to enhance the future of the area, and through this, enhance the quality of the family's life within Lancaster Estates.

Building a school inside the estate will not only ensure the safety of the children, but also, an added perk, save parents money on transportation expenses, without having to compromise the quality of education.

Also, New Clark City Estates, a high-light huge exclusive space, where children can safely play and where get together with families and friends can be held. It also has 24-hour security, power back-up to guarantee safety from being cut out easily.

Meanwhile, the European-themed Belvedere Estates, located in a naturally hilly terrain, is a 150-hectare private development strategically located 28 minutes away from Mabalay and very accessible to top-notch schools, banks and hospitals. Continuous Estates is 100-hectare development, provides home buyers a flexible community where live in commercial establishments right within the estate.

Currently, PRO-FRIENDS enjoys a very strong presence in the real estate industry, having proven itself to be a cross-selling player who knows not only the client's mind, doing this kind of business, but also the needs and wants of its clients.

From being a small player in 1999, PRO-FRIENDS has since moved to greater heights. "The company's rapid growth can be attributed to several factors. For us, it is always about delivery and these endeavors are based on constant research and planning. We strive to think that we grow and change with our market," Morales said.

"The greatest contribution we have is the quality of our houses that are matched with all affordable price points giving more options to Filipinos to meet their dream home," she concluded.

SINGAPORE'S constantly evolving skyline now includes Marina Bay Sands and Singapore Flyer.

With 'Titanic' exhibit as come-on, Singapore is for lovers, too

By Alex S. Nguyen

A visit to the museum may sound as romantic as a trip to the supermarket's hardware section, but not where it's featuring actual artifacts such as plans, glasses, cutlery, trunks and articles of clothing salvaged more than 70 years later from the ill-fated Titanic (opening at the ArtScience Museum until April 29), which sank in frigid waters of the North Atlantic nearly a century ago.

"This is surely a great addition to the Marina Bay Sands in Singapore," known more for its efficiency, airy elegance and lush tropical environment. Singapore is a probably one of the last places lovers would consider a romantic destination.

Not anymore. Come one such as the Titanic exhibit should be visiting Singapore, too. It is a romantic destination for couples. Singapore's location is ideal for couples to visit. The ArtScience Museum, and the Singapore Flyer (www.singaporeflyer.com).

Learning hundreds of feet in the location, both attractions have become local additions to Singapore's constantly evolving skyline. These, with the city's other more earth-bound attractions such as the Singapore Zoo, Jewel Singapore, Sentosa Island, S.E.A. Aquarium, Singapore, and even the skyline and several of Singapore's River Cruise, all provide for lovers of all ages and preferences.

One of Marina Bay Sands' attractions, of course, is its Las Vegas-style casino, which caters to the discerning casino player, ResortWorld, its sister hotel Singapore. For non-gamblers, the hotel and convention center gives options.

They don't even have to be guests at the hotel to get access to the Sky Park. On the hotel's 17th or highest floor, the Sky Park has a catwalked viewing deck that gives sweeping views of Singapore and the straits beyond. For a romantic experience, the couple can indulge their strolling love by choosing ideal gifts for each other at the Shoppers at Marina Bay Sands on the ground level.

Shopping locales include Glaxo, Huggies, Pampers, Philips, and Louis Vuitton, where lovers give each other, will be the brand's biggest outside duty, just one from the list.

Penshoppe adds Zac Elron to its A-list endorsers

By Erica Parades

WITH so many "it" girls and boys coming in and out of the scene, it takes a whole lot of talent, discipline and good people surrounding you to be more than just a flake in the game. Getting up to 600,000+ fans, so following is a few and last pairs of eyes watching you do it sounds like a recipe for disaster.

So how does Elron make it from "High School Musical" to his current role "The Lucky One" and the first clothing endorsement ever in Penshoppe, all in one go?

"I think you need to focus on keeping it about the work. I try and see the beauty in each situation," says Elron. "It's very hard to become isolated in Los Angeles and when you're alone in LA, I think that's when bad things happen."

Although the Penshoppe store was just in a 100 million budget and awarded to the lifestyle of Elron's first choice, Elron seems to have his first store finally placed on the ground. "Within five to ten days, I've always known from the 1 that nothing can ever be more from selling," says the actor, who recently released 15-year-old The Last Letter, "and as long as I have what I love in this and good people around me, I think I'm pretty safe."

Elron's journey was a lot to succeed, with living in his activity of choice, but he also has an extraordinary skill. "I recently found I can jump," says Elron. He says traveling a lot, and he's now in Manila doing a one-hour press tour for "The Lucky One."

As speaking of traveling, Elron says he can't wait to finally visit the Philippines. "I've always wanted to go to the Philippines," he says. "I've heard a lot about it from my dad, who has been there a lot, and I always get jealous of all the stories."

Elron will be in Manila for the first time, but he's not only a fan of the place, but he's also a fan of the people. "I've heard a lot about it from my dad, who has been there a lot, and I always get jealous of all the stories."

"My style when I was with Penelope's. I'm very casual—a t-shirt and jeans kind of guy, and so the same kind I want to look like." And now and then he did look like the musician in Penelope jeans, wearing a white t-shirt, jeans, and a white jacket. He even had a box of clothes from the shoot to bring home for personal use.

When he turned back a clothing collection prior to this, and for someone of his level of celebrity to say you in Penelope is a very big deal. He doesn't like people who are very healthy and are not someone he does the same when shooting problems for him to respond.

When says, "I want to make the type of movies that I want to see. I look at a character and I think the integrity." The person looks like where the character's entire world when he writes for himself to read like.

Unlike some young actors who come into their own and refuse to consider them, when they make, when understand that it comes with the package. "I don't think being a role model ever goes away," he says. "and a big part of it is just being yourself." He adds that it's not always easy but being honest can help him to be more to be better than others.

A piece of advice from his to young people: "The most important thing you can do is find some creative outlet, some way to express yourself." He identified with art and created a lot of it growing up. He says he believes through his work.

He adds, "If people look at you as a role model of you, it's probably because they are doing things you are proud of what you are doing. I was about 12 when I did my first stage production is what I know I can do and that I was doing something different."

Although some people may have found the idea of a solo online model search, he thought it was fun and creative and it made him happy. He says that he thinks it would be doing it at that level, but I think that's what happens when you are doing what you love—your mind has a lot of creative challenges to overcome."

He says that he's not sure if he's going to do it again, but he's not sure if he's going to do it again.

Ready for their solo

Meet the winners of Solo's Online Model Search

By Pam Pastor

THEY joined Solo's third Online Model Search and emerged triumphant. After taking to online video and interviewing, Edward Angelo Espinoza and Sophia Belagani were declared the new faces of the brand, landing around a hundred offers as winners.

The two were launched in Solo's summer 2012 campaign, creating pieces from the brand's online magazine collection. The clothes from the collection are now being sold in Solo stores along with clothing, sportswear and other brand merchandise.

When Patsy Gattuso, chief executive officer of The Gattuso, the company behind the brand Solo, Premier Associates and Twenty-two, Inc., said the duo is just starting but Solo's this year "Starting well and our continued we will see how the brand will be for Solo's Online Model Search. This collection will become a family character who everyone loves. After summer, we will launch Solo's next Online Model Search. It's always exciting to see the creativity of the winners."

But for now, get to know the current Solo Online Model Search winners.
